Miner Is Dead From Tick Bite

"Tonopah - James Doherty, twenty-seven year old miner, died early today at the hospital here. Attendants said he had been bitten by a tick while working at the Cimmaron mine several days ago and collapsed while at work. When he arrived at the hospital he was unconscious and failed to rally. He was a native of Tonopah and spent all of his life in this district. Surviving are two brothers, Neil Doherty of Tonopah and Hugh Doherty of Goldfield. Funeral arrangements are pending."
